DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of group I, claims 1 and 2, in the reply filed on November 5, 2004 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

4. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Applicants' admitted prior art in view of US patent 6,838,051 to Marquiss et al.

Applicants' admit in their Jepson claim that incubators comprising provided with a plurality of element chambers which are arranged along the outer periphery of the incubator rotor and each of which accommodates a dry analysis element spotted with a sample and incubates the dry analysis element and a light measuring means having a light measuring head which measures the optical density of the dry analysis element.

Art Unit: 1743

With respect to Applicants' claimed improvement of the light measuring means having a correction means that compensates for fluctuations in the optical density.

Marquiss et al teach a sample processing system comprising a light monitor (5122). Marquiss et al teach that the light monitor used to correct for fluctuations in the intensity of light provided by the light sources. Such corrections may be performed by reporting detected intensities as a ratio over corresponding times of the luminescence intensity measured by the detector to the excitation light intensity measured by the light monitor. The light monitor also can be programmed to alert the user if the light source fails. See col. 44, lines 40-48.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the incubators known in the art with a light monitor to provide a manner for assuring accurate results by correcting for light intensities.

With respect to claim 2, the manner in which the correction means operates within the device is not sufficiently limiting to make the claims patentable since the limitation is directed to the manner in which the device operates. See MPEP 2114.
